

22133VIC Graduate Certificate in Neuro-linguistic Programming

Nationally accredited, rigorous, comprehensive NLP Training

We codify and transfer exceptional effectiveness to enable people to transform their own and others' performance.

Endorsed and respected nationally and internationally

The Graduate Certificate in Neuro-Linguistic Programming is the world's first and only fully accredited post-graduate qualification in NLP. With this qualification you gain access to any opportunities that specify graduate certificate entry.

This course has been created with the endorsement of NLP co-founder, John Grinder and is the most rigorous and comprehensive course of its type available, setting an impressive benchmark for NLP education. It supersedes the Course in Practitioner of NLP and the Master Practitioner of NLP.

The material in the course covers all the significant developments in NLP from the major schools, bringing together the essence of the classic patterns alongside the insights of the New Code, resulting in a powerful, un-paralleled post-graduate course and qualification in NLP.

Unlike courses that teach peripheral applications, the Graduate Certificate in NLP will take you to the very heart of this field. You will experience rigorous, comprehensive training in NLP and be given the opportunity to develop your own NLP applications, learning from world-class NLP thought leaders.

Outcomes for business and personal life

NLP is a unique discipline that enables you to think, communicate and manage others highly effectively. The Graduate Certificate program enables suitably vetted and appropriately qualified entrants the opportunity to refine their communication skills for personal advancement and commercial benefits.

Used correctly, the discipline helps participants identify excellence and discern the patterns of behaviour and language underpinning the excellence. From this learning and understanding, models are created. Indeed, every NLP pattern in the syllabus has been modeled on someone who has demonstrated excellence in his or her field.

Training will provide outcomes on three levels.

Outcomes for personal life:

- Optimise your stress levels
- Master your emotional levels to support high performance
- Reframe events and increase your options
- Drop unwanted habits when you choose to
- Create empowering beliefs that work
- Improve your memory
- Uncover your own patterns of excellence

Outcomes for communication:

- See, hear and feel from many perspectives to support high performance
- Interact effectively in multiple contexts
- Create rapport with others
- Communicate compellingly to different people
- Use Metaphor to communicate your ideas

Outcomes for management:

- Acquire precise and elegant language to enable high quality results
- Identify resources to achieve goals smoothly
- Mediate change in your self and others for more options
- Think globally and specifically; solve problems more effectively
- Negotiate win-win solutions at work and elsewhere
- Develop high level patterns modelled from yourself and other experts for application in your field(s)

“For over a decade, Jules and Chris Collingwood of Inspiritive have worked diligently and effectively to make the New Code of NLP available. More remarkably they have also focused on a set of mapping functions that connect the classic NLP patterns of interventions with the insights of the New Code. This allows classic trained NLP practitioners the option of continuing to use the classic patterns of NLP that they have already learned but with the features of an updated New Code approach.” JOHN GRINDER

Who is it for?

The Graduate Certificate in NLP is for people whose work depends on the quality, precision and effectiveness of their thinking, communication and management.

Participants in our NLP training programmes tend to fall into three broad groups.

Career Optimisers

Typically people working in mid to senior management who wish to optimise their career prospects.

The Graduate Certificate in NLP will help these people to perfect all-important communication and business skills in ways that noticeably improve their performance and effectiveness, taking them to the next level and beyond in their careers.

The Graduate Certificate in NLP will assist people to develop the skills and competencies they need to improve their performance which in turn impacts positively on their career path.

NLP Consultants

Typically people who wish to forge careers as NLP Consultants – either they are seeking a complete career change from their current work or are already working as consultants and wish to fine-tune their skills and competencies.

The Graduate Certificate in NLP enables these people to develop the skills they require to train individuals and groups. The qualification allows them to enhance their skills and professional offerings to ensure they bring out the best in others.

As a trainer the possibilities are endless – our graduates work in all sorts of fields, with all sorts of individuals and groups.

Corporates

These tend to be organisations and companies who wish to incorporate NLP training as a core part of their managerial training programmes.

They identify and select their most promising professionals and encourage them to sign up for the Graduate Certificate in NLP, valuing it alongside the likes of an MBA or similar business qualifications.

Such is the power, potential and stature of this Graduate Certificate.

Full training in two parts

The complete course - Parts 1 and 2 - comprises a total of eight units over 40 training days. Entry to Part 2 is only available to applicants who have completed Part 1.

Part 1 - Learn proven models of excellence

Part 1 is a comprehensive, skill-based course in the essential abilities of people who excel at what they do. John Grinder and Richard Bandler (the founders of NLP) identified and modelled these patterns of effective thinking, behaviour and communication. They learned to reproduce these skills in their own behaviour (modelling) and then described them explicitly so others could learn and apply these patterns. These skills form the basis of Part 1 of the course.

This course is a rigorous, experiential training that empowers you to create lasting, sustainable change in your life. This is achieved by teaching you to work with real situations, problems and experiences. Course elements include presentations, demonstrations, guided exercises and practice. Feedback and discussion sessions will help you achieve results through immersion in the NLP experience. Partner and group activities are designed to provide you with memorable learning and evidence of your NLP mastery through contact with other people.

Each student on Part 1 will receive a copy of the NLP Field Guide: Part 1, by Jules and Chris Collingwood and Part 2 students will receive a comprehensive training manual.

Part 2 - Create your own models of excellence

If you can create your own models of human excellence, you have the leverage to learn any skill you choose. This is the emphasis of Part 2. Acquisition of excellence in any endeavour lends itself to creating a model, not a theory. Being able to model equips you with the means to create your own NLP applications instead of depending solely on those developed by other people.

You will learn formal self-modelling by exploring, transforming and developing your self-concept. This element of the Graduate Certificate in NLP is for personal development and working with others.

You have an opportunity to explore experientially, model and then make explicit significant patterns, perceptual filters and values which are present in your maps of self, your self-concept. Participants then have the opportunity to work with each other to transform any limiting patterns.

Each student will receive a copy of the NLP Field Guide: Part 2, by Jules and Chris Collingwood

Units Part 1

Unit 1: VU20480 Experience NLP Fundamentals, Unit 2: VU20481 Elicit Information and Generate Solutions, Unit 3: VU20482 Apply Interventions for Optimal Self-Management, Unit 4: VU20483 Metaphor and Strategies that support Change and Development

Units Part 2

Unit 5: VU20484 Apply Advanced Processes to personal and organisational change, Unit 6: VU20485 Perform NLP Modelling to capture Expertise, Unit 7: VU20486 Design Advanced NLP Patterns, Unit 8: VU20487 Optimise Personal and Professional Effectiveness

A training format to suit you

Modular 20 day format for each of Parts 1 and 2: divided into four monthly sessions of five days each, covering one unit. We usually train Thursday to Monday including the weekend to allow for work/life balance during your learning.

Intensive 20 day format for each of Parts 1 and 2: divided into four units of five days each with either one or two days off between each unit.

Both formats conform to the accreditation requirements of 158 hours of live contact training sessions each for Part 1 and Part 2.

In both parts of the course, candidates will be assessed through:

- Experiential evaluation
(Live demonstration of skills in the training room)
- Written evaluation
(written take home questions with three months to complete)
- Continuing coaching and evaluation throughout the course.

“Experiential training takes time. We want people to be able to do NLP, not talk about it.” JULES COLLINGWOOD

Making NLP a life skill

All of Inspiritive's NLP certification courses are structured around the core competency of NLP modelling. We model what we teach and create contexts for you to discover the patterns in action. You will experience the patterns through exercises, games and tasks.

This has been called the "emergent approach" to learning NLP. It enables students to communicate spontaneously and naturally, with their own style and vocabulary. We respond flexibly to the patterns we observe in other people's communication instead of relying on scripted techniques or conscious formats.

Our emphasis is always on replicating the skill or pattern in question, not talking about it or reproducing a scripted format. As a result you will experience emerging NLP patterning in your daily life, from which appropriate understanding then follows.

"Traditionally, psychology has been about studying the norm, but NLP deliberately focuses on the exceptions. It provides a methodology for modelling excellence in human behaviour." CHRIS COLLINGWOOD

Academic Awards

22133VIC Graduate Certificate in Neuro-Linguistic Programming

Upon successful completion of all 8 units students will be awarded a Graduate Certificate in Neuro-Linguistic Programming.

Individual Units of Competency in part completion of 22133VIC Graduate Certificate in Neuro-Linguistic Programming

Upon successful completion of each unit of competency students are awarded a Statement of Attainment for that unit.

Entry requirements

Naturally, not everyone who applies for the Graduate Certificate can be accepted. As with any post-graduate course, the minimum requirements are:

- A bachelor's degree or higher
- Or a nationally accredited advanced diploma or international equivalent
- Or evidence of three years' full time employment in a managerial capacity

“Being able to model gives you the means to create your own applications instead of depending on existing NLP processes.” JULES COLLINGWOOD

Certification

Practitioner of New Code NLP

Upon completion of the first 3 units; VU20480, VU20481, VU20482 students may apply for a Practitioner of NLP certificate.

Master Practitioner of New Code NLP

Upon completion of the next 2 units; VU20483, VU20485 students may apply for a Master Practitioner of NLP certificate.

Recognition of Prior Learning (RPL)

Any person who believes they have all the competencies that match one or more units of the Graduate Certificate in Neuro-Linguistic Programming may elect to apply for RPL for those units. RPL consists of testing of conceptual understanding of NLP and experiential assessment of application of the NLP patterns required for each unit.
